Concerning the Spiritual in Art

“I want my art to convey hope, love, joy, peace and spirituality. Despite all the bad things that happen, both man-made and acts of nature, I feel we do live in a benevolent universe. I will always be a student of art and spirituality till my life”.

I was borne on 22nd November 1959 in a town - Vadodara, India.

I've not really had as much time as I'd like creating art. 'It kind of happens when it happens'. For some time now I have been working towards a 'series of collection' in my spare time. Sure I can draw and I am okay at it. But I wanted to create a 'style of Art', like the Impressionists or along those lines. So for the time-being in my own soul search this had become the theme or brief. One way to describe my art works to date is that they have been somewhat spiritual in nature.'

Shree Yantra

The Sanskrit name "Shree Yantra", translates as 'Shree' means wealth and Yantra means Instrument. This sacred instrument is an ancient tool which possesses Cosmic powers that help the worshippers of this magnificent Yantra to fulfil all worldly desires or wishes, both material and spiritual.

Pancha Tattva

The word "Pancha Tattva" literally means five elements of life ('Pancha' meaning five and 'Tattvas' in meaning elements in Sanskrit).

Namely: Water (Jala), Fire (Agni), Earth (Bhumi), Air (Vayu) and Ether (Brahmand).

Interestingly, whole ayurvedic and yogic culture is based on the principle of the five cardinal elements.

The Yin Yang

The Yin Yang symbol teaches us that in life all that we encounter is not just light or just darkness. Each side has its own legitimacy and it is good to do so. In other words: your inner yin and yang need each other! When the components are in balance within you, this state will be reflected outside you, living the world in harmony.
